MASTER CLASS

Acclaimed watchmaker Roger Dubuis will return to the company he founded in 1995 as a mentor and ambassador. Dubuis will lend his expertise to the brand that bears his name, working particularly with the head of movement development, Gregory Bruttin, and his team. Roger Dubuis CEO Georges Kern says, "The fact that Mr. Dubuis has chosen to come back to the firm indicates that we are honoring the history and emblematic aesthetics of the brand and are moving in the right direction. The entire team at the manufacture is, like me, delighted to have the opportunity to draw on the watchmaking talent of Roger Dubuis and his inherent encyclopedic knowledge." JOBS WELL DONE

An original design, paying tribute to technology visionary Steve Jobs, the sculptural Dream Watch IV in titanium by De Bethune is a timepiece and smartphone case hybrid that provides both protection for the iPhone 4S and electromagnetic protection for the user. Created by David Zanetta and Denis Flageollet, the 12-piece limited edition features a spaceship aesthetic and a dial of hand-polished blued titanium, white gold and diamonds. It's a "pocket watch"

PACIFIC TIME

Zenith's rich tradition of creating timepieces that helped explorers plot their adventures at sea lives on in the design of its modern day line of Captain watches. Beginning last fall, a new limited edition Captain, clad in deep blue Pacific Ocean hues, has been offered exclusively at Westtime boutiques in Southern California. The Captain Winsor 28-piece Limited Edition for

Westtime ($10,800) contains an annual calendar complication and Zenith's in-house El Primero automatic chronograph movement. The 42-mm stainless steel and rose gold case frames a black and blue guilloché dial with rose gold-plated hands and indexes. The watch's alligator strap is lined with rubber. "Professional explorers and adventurers continue to wear Zenith watches today, and between expeditions they often visit Westtime to share their experiences," says Westtime president Greg Simonian. "We are honored that Zenith created a watch so perfectly suited to the lives our customers lead." 866.675.2079, zenith-watches.com
